

TAKEAWAY - 01

Example:

EXAMPLE - 01

Tim described the Super Bowl homepage campaign: all energy went into a short-term spike with uncertain value.

He had to anchor the team in long-term strategic relevance amid the urgency. He did the emotional labor of contextualizing against short-term pressure

What if an AI could've somehow reinforced that in a different situation?

EXAMPLE - 02

Akhil talked about short-term decisions that undermined long-term scalability.

One example: (while talking about an acquisition) customizing early deals that later broke the model.

An AI prompting, “Does this decision reinforce your 5-year architecture, or just solve this quarter’s fire?” could help put courage in tension with short-term incentive structures